Mayor's Proclamation Urges City To Help Mark "Americanization Week"

Mayor Snare today issued a proclamation urging all organizations and businessmen of Marion to cooperate with Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks in observance of "Americanization Week," which begins Sunday.

Elks lodges throughout the country are choosing the week of Feb. 18-24 for special Americanization programs. The Marion lodge at its meeting Thursday will conduct a naturalization court with a judge, examiner and several "immigrants." Walter D. Moore, chairman for the week, has obtained official naturalization questions on American life and government from the Cincinnati naturalization office.

Letters have been mailed by Mr. Moore to some 230 Marion organizations asking their cooperation in observance of the week and a great number have indicated they will have some activity in keeping with the week.

A Word About Turoff's Coffee
The Fragrance of Freshness.
Mother nature wisely placed a protective skin or shell on fruits, vegetables and nuts to keep them fresh and to keep their goodness, aroma and flavor intact.
She did the same with Coffee!
Every Coffee bean has a hard protective shell called the Epicarp—sealing in the flavor, aromatic oils, and rich goodness of Coffee. As long as this shell remains unbroken, Coffee remains fresh flavor-full and delicious—but break this shell by grinding—and coffee quickly grows stale, rancid and weak.
Turoff's Coffee Always Fresh
Every pound of Turoff's Coffee is brought in the whole bean, freshly roasted and ground right on the premises immediately before brewing and serving.
That is why you notice the aroma of fresh coffee at Turoff's. Furthermore Turoff's Coffee is brewed in the latest coffee-makers—in small quantities to preserve all the freshness and flavor for your cup.

HOG PRODUCER DRIVE OPENED

Seek To Recover Markets Lost Through Growth of Vegetable Fats.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—A livestock marketing expert's warning that the hog producer's share of the consumer dollar is diminishing spurred organization today of the corn belt's first nationwide campaign to sell more pork and lard to the housewife.
A plan to raise a promotional campaign chest through voluntary contributions of five cents per animal marketed was advanced through the corn-hog country on the heels of formal launching of a new cooperative, incorporated as "American Pork Producers, Associated."

Representatives of hog farmers in the principal producing states met here yesterday with marketing processing and retail interests to perfect their organization in a culmination of a series of farmer gatherings throughout the corn belt.
H. M. Conway, economist with the National Livestock Marketing association, told producers the hog "has lost its previously recognized place as 'mortgage lifter.'"
He said it was impossible to get a materially increased proportion of the consumer's meat dollar through abnormally low hog production because consumers shifted to vegetable shortenings and other lard substitutes.
"Hog producers have been entitled to receive annually $850,000,000 more than they received for hogs produced in this country during the past 20 years," Conway contended. "This stacks up to the staggering sum of approximately $13,000,000,000. This sum reflects the decreased proportion of the consumer's pork and lard dollar going to hog producers."

The big corn crops of the past three years coupled with high prices for hogs that prevailed until last year stimulated hog production. As a result the hog population on farms increased from a low of 39,000,000 head five years ago to more than 52,000,000 head at the start of this year. The gain last year was more than 9,000,000.
Expanding supplies together with reduction of export outlets have been accompanied by a price decline which has returned the hog value at market to about 5 cents a pound, 2 cents above the 1932 low and almost 8 cents below the 1937 peak.

Prisoner Takes Sermon To Heart, Perseverance Helps Build Organ

By The Associated Press
MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Feb. 18.—One Sunday three years ago, Indiana state prison's chaplain, Rev. Robert Hall, preached a sermon to the convicts on "Determination."
"Anything can be accomplished," he emphasized. "If there is determination. Some day, we'll have a beautiful organ in this chapel. I don't know how. But if we are determined, we'll have it."
James D. Trees, 38-year-old convict, went up to the chaplain after the service.
"Rev. Hall," he said, "if you want a chapel organ, I'll build it."
"Do you know anything about organs?" the chaplain asked.
"No sir, not a thing—but I'll learn," Jim Trees did learn.
Organ Worth $7,000
So well, in fact, that a pipe organ appraised at more than $7,000 is nearing completion in the prison chapel.
Actually, the organ cost only $108. That was because Jim's determination and perseverance beat down odds that were heart-breaking and, at times, seemingly insurmountable.
Jim had a little knowledge of music, gained from violin lessons he took years back. He knew very little about organs except that wind went in and sound came out.
He wrote to his mother and told her of his ambition. She sent him two books—"How to Build a Chamber Organ," by Milne, and "The Contemporary American Organ," by Dr. William H. Barnes.
Jim read them so many times he virtually memorized them. At the end of six months, he wrote to Barnes at Chicago, telling him what he wanted to do.
Barnes answered immediately and sent Jim two sets of pipes.
Encouraged by the gift, Jim went to work in earnest. He begged and borrowed scraps of material from the prison shops to make pipes.
Worked Spare Time
He had to work in his spare time in the evenings, during the days, he had to direct the prison band in practices, in addition to his ordinary prison duties.
Warden Alfred P. Dowd, who had been keeping an interested eye on Jim's progress, finally told him last June he could make the organ-building a full-time job.
There were no funds available, and material was meager. But that didn't stop Trees. He plugged away at the tedious task. To control the pipe valves, 450 small magnetic coils were necessary. Jim couldn't buy them; they cost more than $300. But he induced the prison officials to purchase $30 worth of fine copper wire and some thin, leathery skins. (That $30, incidentally, was the largest sum the prison spent for the job.)

Used Leather Scraps
He collected some leather scraps from the prison shoe shop.
He wound the magnetic coils by hand, 5,000 turns to each. When he finished approximately 100, he was given a helper. Then, he fashioned valves by hand from the skins and the leather.
Now, nearly at the end of the long drive, Jim said, "without Dr. Barnes, I never would have finished the task. He has donated, or has induced others to donate parts of the organ I needed so badly."
In all, Barnes sent him four sets of pipes. An organ company donated another. Jim made more than 100 by hand out of wood scraps.
He found his hardest job was to design and build the organ's action. At first, he had only the keyboard of an old reed organ donated by a nearby farmer. Later, Barnes sent him a complete console, which Jim affixed to the controls, a complicated chore even for an expert.
Job Awaits Jim
Jim did all the wiring. He installed all the tubes, valves, pedals and other mechanisms.
A few days ago, Barnes saw the organ and said an instrument of its size and quality would cost more than $7,000.
It will be dedicated in two to three months.
Jim is scheduled to leave the prison next Christmas eve after serving 10 years for robbery committed in Marion county (Indianapolis) in 1934.
There's a job waiting for him. Barnes saw to that, too.

BURTON OPENS SENATE DRIVE

Clevelanders Speaks in Opponent's Home Town; Ashbrook Assails G. O. P. Foe.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 18.—While several of Ohio's best known Republicans remain undecided whether to enter the U. S. senate race, Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, a declared candidate, has launched his speech-making campaign.
Burton spoke last night in Norwalk, the home of his only announced opponent, Rep. Dudley A. White, before the Huron County Draft Home association after conferring throughout the day with Republican leaders in Erie and Huron counties.
Americans "should not accept governmental ownership, operation or restriction of our production agencies" while there still is hope of raising the national income to "earn our way to industrial and agricultural recovery," he said.
Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironi, a prospective candidate for the senate post now held by Democrat Vic Donahey, conferred with Republican state leaders in Columbus yesterday. Other possible candidates are National Grange Master L. J. Taber and James N. Linton of Columbus.
Democrats, meanwhile, prepared for their joint central and executive committee meeting here Saturday to adopt plans for Ohio's delegation to the presidential nominating convention.
Byron B. Ashbrook, Johnstown Democrat campaigning for congress in the special 17th district election, asserted at Coshocton today that "more than a thousand state employees" were working for his Republican opponent, J. Harry McGregor.

"The governor (John W. Bricker) and the Republican state boss are doing everything in their power to make the people of this district take their hand-picked candidate," Ashbrook declared. "More than a thousand state employees are working for him now, and the governor himself is coming into the 17th district to tell the people here to send his favorite errand-boy to congress."

Field drive instead asserted to start a drive smoothly without jerk.

Japanese Face Serious Financial Trouble in Buying New Supplies

(This is the second of two articles surveying Japan's financial position in the light of what would happen if congress, as proposed, imposed an embargo on raw materials to the Japanese empire.)

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—A survey of Japan's financial and economic structure—after the strain of 22 months of war in China—indicates the Japanese will have serious difficulties in purchasing vital needed industrial and war supplies abroad.

Japan's domestic economic and financial troubles are increasing daily. Its export trade is declining, and its gold reserves are being exhausted. Its gold reserve is approaching a point where it is no longer sufficient to meet the needs of the Japanese government and its war effort. Japan's gold reserve is estimated at $185,000,000. In the six months since then, however, Japan has shipped more than $78,000,000 and its central bank still reports currency reserves of $164,000,000.

Lloyd Lehrbas

Federal reserve bank and commerce department figures show the following manipulation of Japan's gold stocks:

Before the outbreak of hostilities in China in 1937 the central bank of Japan's reserves were $403,000,000.

Estimate on New Production
Its production of newly mined gold since is estimated at $130,000,000, but in that period it has shipped $379,830,000 to the United States, $4,000,000 to other countries, and the central bank reports it still has $104,000,000 in its vaults.

Where did Japan get the surplus of approximately $104,000,000 not shown in its original report for new gold production, and are those unknown sources sufficient to enable Japan to carry on purchases for which it must pay in gold?

Financial experts here can only estimate and guess that Japan is receiving at least some gold and foreign exchange through these tricks:

1.—Foreign exchange from shipping services and tourists.

2.—Remittances from Japanese living in the United States (including Hawaii and the Philippines) and other foreign countries.

3.—Favorable exchange balances from foreign trade with such countries as England, France, and the Scandinavian nations which, however, has decreased considerably. Japan secures no foreign exchange from trade with China, Manchukuo or other yen-bloc countries.

4.—Gold donated by the public which, at the maximum figure, is estimated at $15,000,000. The emperor and other wealthy Japanese also have owned the government's valuable gold objects which might be used as reserves in the central bank, replacing an equivalent value in gold bars.

5.—An unknown amount of gold, silver and other valuable objects which may have been obtained from Japanese-occupied areas in China.

6.—Foreign exchange secured in China, through exchange of Japanese notes for military script for Chinese notes, before the Chinese government stopped that source by refusing to grant foreign exchange for Chinese currency in Japanese-occupied areas and Shanghai.

7.—A possibility that Japan may have some earmarked gold on deposit with the federal reserve bank, which is sold to the treasury, as needed, at $35 per ounce. Such information is secret.

8.—Japan's resources and investments in the United States, which might be sold to pay for purchases here. The federal reserve bank has no separate statistics for Japan but includes it in the "Far East and other countries." That category includes China, the Philippines, India, Australia, New Zealand, Dutch East Indies, and Africa, who have total resources here estimated at $1,290,000,000.

Share Believed Small.
In view of Japan's extremely heavy investments in China and Manchukuo and its own requirements for industrial expansion, economists do not believe that Japan's share of those resources is very large.

Japan's need of raw materials continues daily and, in view of the predicted approaching exhaustion of its gold reserves, economists here are pondering on how it will obtain the products necessary for industry, foreign trade and the war in China, whether or not congress imposes an embargo.

Most of them predict that 1934 will tell the story.

GRIFFITH REFERS ROW TO DEMOCRATIC LEADERS

PLAN BURIAL OF MAN FOUND DEAD IN JAIL

Authorities Fail to Identify Transient at Prospect.

Funeral services for an unidentified transient man, found dead last week in the Prospect jail, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. by authorities reported today.

The body has been held at the Drake funeral home pending efforts to establish identity. Efforts to uncover some clue to the man's identity reached a dead end today when authorities here received word that his fingerprints are not on file with the federal bureau of investigation.

The man, who had been given permission to sleep in the jail a week ago Wednesday night, was found dead the following day by Marshal Ed Fetter. Death was

LIVE WORMS INSIDE MY CHILD? ...IT CAN'T BE!

Better Face the Facts, Mother!
You may not realize how easy it is for your child to get round worms without your even knowing it. The truth is that nobody is immune to this nasty infection and children are by no means exempt. These "round" worms live in the small intestine, from which they can be passed to other children, from the ground or from infected drinking water.

Here are some of Nature's warnings that tell you our child has round worms: itching nose or seat, stomach distress, rashes and squinting, grinding teeth, "picky" eating, restless sleep. When you suspect these things are happening, don't wait. Get a real worm medicine at once to drive them out.

Jay's Vermifuge is a pleasant-tasting worm medicine, known throughout the country for its success in expelling large round worms. When taken as directed it works thoroughly, yet gently, and there are no worms, it costs merely as much as a mild laxative.

Jay's Vermifuge has been used for over a century by millions of mothers. It contains no salicylates, no harmful drugs, and is a good clean job without causing stomach upset.

Write today for Jay's good-will gift: a useful valuable modern-style kitchen knife set. This gift is yours for the asking. No return attached, nothing to buy. Cut out this ad and send it with your name and address, before February 21, 1940, to Dept. Q-1, Dr. D. Jayne & Son, 3 Vine Street, Philadelphia.

TWO MOTORISTS FINED IN MORROW CO. COURTS

Two motorists were arrested by Patrolmen T. B. Morgan and David Weissert of the Marion station of the state highway patrol on Morrow county roads yesterday afternoon about 3:30.

Faith in Fishing

INTIMATIONS of something more serious afoot than fishing have grown out of unusual secrecy surrounding President Roosevelt's vacation at sea. It is hinted that the sea-going chief executive may be intending to mix business with pleasure—perhaps an inspection of the neutrality patrol.

This is a blow to national faith in fishing as presidential recreation. Throughout Mr. Roosevelt's years in the White House, his countrymen have been tickled pink at his fishing expeditions. They have made no complaint about his fondness for cruisers as fishing boats. They have assumed that anything which took the mind of the overworked occupant of the White House off weighty problems was worth whatever it cost.

By way of reciprocity, Mr. Roosevelt has sent back reports of what he was catching, what he hoped to catch, what he had caught—and an occasional picture. Everything has been in the open. It has been a congenial arrangement—hard on the fish, but easy on everybody else. A sudden retreat into secrecy and mysterious wherewithals spoils it all. Perhaps it has some bearing on the third term question. Suspicions have been aroused.

Lost in the Digits

THERE is danger that a government which counts in billions while its people count in hundreds will sail out of mental range, like a star a million light miles from earth.

Evidence to this effect cropped up in President Roosevelt's protest against a cut in a naval appropriations bill carrying the astronomical figure of $806,772,078. Even in rubber dollars, that's a billion smackers to all intents and purposes.

Consequently, when congress votes to lop off $111,000,000, which would be a sizeable chunk of money under ordinary circumstances, no one turns a hair, except the navies. A few hundred thousand light years, or a few million dollars in the budget one way or another amount to little more than hair-splitting. If the navy can't defend the country with less than $800,000,000, it probably couldn't turn the trick with more.

Russia's Lopsided Advantage

MASS attacks on the Mannerheim line by Russia's hordes of soldiers ultimately must bring victory, barring some unforeseen change in the character of the war. More than bravery and skill are needed to turn back the current offensive movement.

Soviet numbers can wear out the defending Finns, not because the red army is better but simply because it is larger. Soviet militarism, like that of the czars, does not value life. It can sacrifice thousands to the opposition's hundreds.

In the World War, Russia sustained the heaviest casualties of any belligerent—1,700,000 dead, 4,860,000 wounded, 2,500,000 taken prisoner or reported missing, a casualty total of 9,150,000. In spite of this, Russia was not an effective World War combatant.

Total casualties of France, in contrast, were only 8,160,000, including 1,357,800 dead and 4,266,000 wounded—and France was the country most deeply involved in the war's destructive force.

Plans report the Mannerheim line is being held despite the enemy's willingness to spend manpower in wave after wave of assault. On the western front, with two lines of fortifications, instead of one, to consider, the generals' reasons for stalling to defense are made plainer by recent events in Finland. Only Russian generals have the privilege of slaughtering 10 of their own men to kill one enemy. The dictatorship of the proletariat seems to be about where it was 23 years ago as far as Ivan in the ranks is concerned.

International Lawlessness

LATEST footnote in the textbook of international lawlessness, which puzzles Americans every time Europe goes to war, is Germany's threat to exercise its "theoretical right" to sink neutral ships enroute to enemy ports and contraband bases.

This means that if the diligent British impound an American vessel to search for contraband (which is anything the British need and do not want Germany to get) the no less diligent Germans will feel free to sink the American vessel. At that, it isn't stretching international lawlessness any further than Great Britain stretches it by its far-flung organization for contraband control. Germany, being unable to carry on shipping against the British blockade, has no choice but to destroy what Great Britain, more fortunately situated, seizes.

When Europe goes to war the only law is expediency. The United States learned that the last time and abandoned freedom of the seas to stay out of trouble this time. It now begins to be plain that the only way to stay out of trouble would be a seawall 100 feet high and 100 feet wide from Iceland to Antarctica—and even that would be open to doubt.

News Behind the News

Most Logical Time for Hitler To Launch Air Attack Against England Believed Near.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 — The golden moment for Hitler to launch his blitzkrieg thunderbolt at England is coming. Fog which veils the British lifeline ports with impenetrable mists will begin breaking up about March 1. Good flying weather can generally be depended upon after March 31.

Each ticking second of time, however, lessens Germany's chance of success. Hitler's air "superiority" was at a peak three months ago. It will decline constantly as the British improve their air defenses and accelerate their plane output.

So Hitler must strike quickly if at all.

Der darling Paul Mallon fudger will probably not dare this one. If he does he is likely to expose to the German people the growing apparent bluntness of the myth of his dominant air strength.

His claim is based on his mass production of Messerschmidt pursuit planes. It is not known outside—but the British know it—what he stopped production of the Messerschmidt in all except five factories last April. His mass production system was turned then to the production of these heavy four-motored bombers which have proved only moderately successful. Lately he has switched production again to the light two-motored biplane bombing attack plane which is yet untried but for which no great hopes are held.

His vast volume of Messerschmidt was produced from one to two years ago, and all are now practically obsolete for his own land defenses and utterly worthless for attack use against Britain. They have insufficient range to accompany the bombers to the British coast and are even being outflown daily on land by the British Lockheed, Vultee, Bell, and Spitfire and the American Curtiss-Hawk flown by the French.

No Attacks on Bases

Hitler's bombing experiments so far have proved effective against ships in the North Sea, but not on commercial and naval bases. Anti-aircraft guns on ships are not as efficient as land batteries. While he has chased the British fleet out of the North Sea, he has had no experience to encourage him to believe that he can carry that method of warfare to British shores successfully.

Russian-Persian Front

The flaming threat of an outbreak on the south Russian-Persian front is traceable to the inside unpublished information reaching the Allies that the Reds have massed three divisions—25,000 men—there.

The Allies are ready for them, and perhaps ready to go after them.

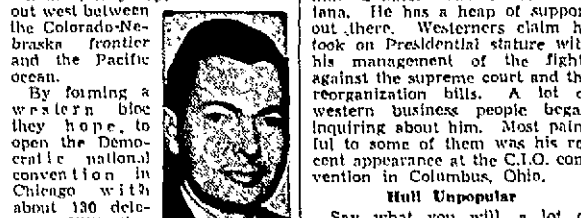

It is not generally known to the public, but the Turks, Persians and Syrians have lately completed a new railroad which runs up from the British-French encampments in Syria and Egypt to the prospective front. The line starts in Syria, winds north through Turkey straight up behind the Russian border to Tabriz, then turns south to Teheran. It means the Allies can feed the weight of their new Syrian-Egyptian concentration in to back up the Turks who have the best army in southeastern Europe and can get to the front as fast as the Russians.

Westerners Peeved

Democrats in That Area Organize for "Recognition."

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The primary peeve of the organization of Democrats of the 10 western states is non-recognition. They claim the Administration has forgotten them. The forgotten man, they say, is somewhere out west between the Colorado-Nebraska frontier and the Pacific ocean.

By forming a western bloc they hope to open the Democratic national convention in Chicago with about 130 delegates. With that influence behind them, they figure they can get more recognition for the western states than they have heretofore received.

Here is a sample of their complaint on the non-recognition matter: Of the 10 members of the cabinet, five are from New York. Not one of the others is from far enough west.

There isn't a western member of the Supreme Court. The west has tried to wizard one member into that august body ever since Justices Van Devanter of Wyoming and Sutherland of Utah retired. No luck.

Wheeler in Favor

We talked to one of the senior members of the westerners. He said the west had been sucked on to too many Democratic bandwagons. Western states have sent delegations to the convention already pledged to this or that candidate. Without any votes to trade, they got no recognition. Moreover, as individual states they could get nothing because no one western state has enough votes to make a dent.

California is not included in the picture. They can't seem to find anybody there who can speak for all the Democrats. California Democracy, from an organization standpoint, is in a mess.

While their complaints of non-recognition can be backed up by more concrete examples, the thing about which the westerners protest most is the trade agreements program. The Rocky Mountain area complains that its interests—livestock, farm products, wool, timber, mining—are being sold across the ocean for the benefit of states with bigger domestic interests to protect.

Their chief trouble is they don't know exactly the man to get behind as a presidential candidate. Their present plan, as

Third Term Question Believed Likely To Hang Fire Until Democratic Convention Votes.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

ALL speculation about the Democratic party is bound to revolve around the question of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward a third term. I have met no one who knows what his attitude is but the chances are ten to one I should suppose, that Mr. Roosevelt has not finally made up his mind. And for reasons which, now at least, seem compelling.

It is impossible to say that his position will be settled finally until the Democratic convention is ready to vote.

It is correct, I believe, to say that the question of a third term has been a practical issue only four times in a hundred years, that is since Andrew Jackson. All the presidents from Van Buren to Buchanan had only one term each. Lincoln was assassinated near the beginning of his second term. Among his successors only Grant was seriously in the running for a third term, and he, of course, failed. But in our own time there have been three presidents who have had a good chance to obtain a third nomination. They were Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge; and now there is Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The cases of T. R. and of Coolidge throw some light on the present discussion. The first Roosevelt made the renunciation which the second Roosevelt is now being asked to make. Did people believe that the renunciation was final and conclusive? They did believe it. Why did they believe it? Because Theodore Roosevelt not only renounced the nomination for himself but picked his successor, namely William Howard Taft, and actively organized the convention for Taft.

Coolidge's Case

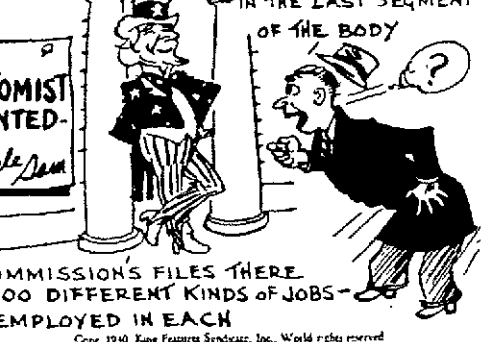

Now consider the case of Coolidge. He also renounced a third term, though in language so cryptic that no one was ever quite certain what the statement meant. As a matter of fact, it is now known that while Coolidge did not choose to run for a third term, he hoped to be drafted, and was rather sadly disappointed when he wasn't. Coolidge, unlike Theodore Roosevelt, never gave his active support to his successor. That is why Mr. Hoover's managers nearly had a nervous breakdown worrying over the danger of a stamped-out draft Coolidge.

These two examples are the only two practical examples we have in our time. They seem to show that when a president is popular at the end of his second term, the only conclusive way to renounce a third term is for him to pick his successor and then to supply him with a majority of pledged delegates. I wonder whether there is any other practical way of settling the question conclusively until the President has come to some definite agreement with his party on the choice of his successor. The guarantee against a third term is the selection of a successor. Is this not what settled the question in the case of Jefferson who selected his Secretary of State Madison, and of Jackson who selected Van Buren, and of Theodore Roosevelt, who selected Taft? I know that there is supposed to be a verbal formula which would settle the matter: the President is to say in the language of Gen. Sherman that if nominated, he will not accept; if elected, he will not serve. But that was said by a man who did not wish to be president, even for one term, not by a man who was president, much less by a president who was being considered for a third term. No president has ever used the formula

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Sunday, Feb. 16, 1930. Orville H. Fulton, 26, one of the owners of the Cedar Lawn dairy near Kenton, and one of the founders of the recently dedicated Cedar Lawn airport, died in Antonio hospital at Kenton.

Methodist Bishop Edgar Blake of Indianapolis spoke at Wesley M. E. church in the morning service and at Epworth church in the evening.

The home of E. J. Knauss on Charles street was damaged by fire.

Frank D. Bain camp, United States War Veterans, held annual memorial services at Kenton with the Rev. A. Henry Giuliano, pastor of the First Baptist church, as speaker.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Monday, Feb. 16, 1920. Ohio was in the grip of the coldest weather of the winter up to this time. Transportation was badly crippled by snowdrifts throughout the state. The low point in Marion was one degree below zero.

Mrs. E. M. Helbig of Atlanta, Ga., was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Krause of South State street.

Miss Neva Inskip of Pleasant street returned home from a visit with friends in Wooster and Elyria.

The third death within approximately a week resulting from influenza and pneumonia occurred in the family of Jacob Pfeiffer near Green Camp when his daughter Florence, 8, passed away. The first to die had been his wife and the second his eldest daughter Anna.

The board of education voted salary bonuses amounting to approximately $15,000 to high and grade school teachers who had been in the teaching service prior to Jan. 1, 1920.

Clarence E. Knuch, 33, died at his home on South State street following a week's illness of influenza. He was associated with his father and brother in a freight transfer business here.

We Missed Him

Gene Tunney Fills Our Hearts With Remorse: We Were Blind to His Ability as a Youngster.

By DAMON RUNYON

GENE TUNNEY confirms our estimate of him as the most intelligent fighter who ever lived on boxing gloves.

Tunney says in a magazine article crying for ship is a state of mind. That, we think, is true. It was never better demonstrated than by Tunney himself in winning the heavyweight championship of the world from Jack Dempsey.

When we look back on Tunney's fighting career we marvel that we did not see him in his youth as a coming champion. Perhaps we were blinded by the brilliance of Dempsey.

We easily forgave Tunney for licking Dempsey, because he did it with such neatness. But we never forgave ourselves for not seeing Tunney sooner and hopping aboard his bandwagon. We were so proud of our own sporting opinions before anyone else and asserting rights of discovery, that that time we were asleep at the switch.

Only the late Bill McGeehan, who was a great fondness for the fight game in general, was on the job, possibly because he had a more discerning eye for a champion than most of the rest of us. He had a genuine liking for young Tunney, who had been a soldier the same as Bill. He cottoned to Gene and was tub-thumping for him as a future champion while all the other sports writers were dismissing Tunney as a Fancy Dan.

THAT was the main reason why we were slow in opening our eyes to Tunney. We were sore because we had not seen him lick it was one of the most grievous errors of our sports writing career. We realized afterward that he had the one thing we usually looked for in potential champions, complete confidence in himself and his future.

He had that state of mind which he says a champion has. He was young, slim, handsome, and had no bad habits. He had a straight gaze. He talked quietly of his belief that he could beat Dempsey. His single-mindedness of purpose in that one detail should have tipped us off. We should have observed him only as he could take a punch and then run into the arena ahead of Bill McGeehan proclaiming the appearance of a coming champion on the horizon.

Before Tunney, we called the turn on Dempsey and before Dempsey we had Jess Willard as right as rain. After missing out on Tunney, we pegged Schmeling. Yet of them all, Tunney had the strongest psychological case. We quickly hooked onto his coat-tails before the second fight with Dempsey, but we always had a embarrassed feeling that we were just stealing a tow.

AS WE have said before in this column, the drama of Tunney's career is still too close to the present generation for us to see the high spots clearly. From now on it will be a terrific task, this story of the man who walked alone for six years in pursuit of his destiny, made himself a millionaire in 20 rounds of boxing, the retired to private life and the company of his finest people.

In his article Tunney relates that he spotted a weakness in Dempsey's defense the day Dempsey fought Georges Carpentier of France. He saw Carpentier nail Dempsey with a straight right that was aimed at Dempsey's jaw but landed a trifle high—on the cheekbone. He saw the mighty Dempsey stagger. The then about Tunney, fighting in a preliminary that saw day, said to himself that was the punch which he would eventually beat Dempsey.

It was. We remember it well. It probably hurt us more than it did Dempsey. When it was morning for the first Dempsey fight, Tunney, who was accounted strictly boxer, inside a light hitter, secretly practiced a straight right inside a left hook, Dempsey's favorite blow, while giving the impression that he was going to rely on his speed and boxing.

He let Dempsey rush him twice, merely moving away on the defensive, but the third time Dempsey came on, Tunney stepped in with a right hand inside Dempsey's sweeping hook. Like Carpentier's blow, the punch was too high but dazed Dempsey and probably decided the battle, Tunney thinks it did. He ought to know.

WE LIKE to read anything Tunney writes about his ring experiences, because he does the writing himself. At least he did. Maybe he has acquired a ghost writer, but we doubt it. Tunney is too critical of others to trust his literary career to anyone else. He writes well. He is an excellent talker. He is always at groomed, has plenty of poise, and has become a business executive of ability.

We do not think we would again overlook Tunney if we encountered one. But let us say you something about that. The Tunneys are along only once in a lifetime. That is also true of the Dempseys, in case you are looking for Dempsey.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

A pioneer in restocking Ohio water with food fish was John H. Klippart, who suggested such a movement some 70 years ago.

Klippart was an agricultural writer and secretary of the Ohio state board of agriculture for nearly 20 years. During this period he received many assignments, among them being state commissioner to Massachusetts to report on cattle. In 1865 he was sent abroad to study the European institutions for teaching practical and technical agriculture and to observe systems of agricultural practice in Europe and Great Britain.

Because of his advocacy of supplying fish to Ohio waters he was appointed state fish commissioner in 1873.

The commission of brigadier-general was only one of its kind conferred by Chandler while he was governor.

essay of from 400 to 600 words on the subject, "The Bill of Rights—My Protection," is open to all pupils of the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades of all public and parochial schools in Marion city and county.

The best two essays, one by a boy and one by a girl, from each class room of each of the four grades in all schools will be selected by the teachers. These will constitute the school winners and must be in the hands of the youth education chairman of one of the four posts in the county by midnight next Thursday.

To Name Post Winners
From the school winners the post will select the eight best essays, one by a boy and one by a girl from each of the four grades. These post winners must be turned over to Mr. Allen by midnight of March 1.

No post may enter more than eight essays. Mr. Allen said. When the county judging has been completed the number of essays will again have been reduced to eight, one boy and one girl winner from each of the four grades. The winning essays from the county must be in the hands of Herb Conant of Fredericktown, Sixth district commander, by March 3.

No county may enter more than eight essays in the district competition. District judges will reduce the number to eight for entry in the state contest. From the district entries the state judges will select the 12 best, one boy and one girl from each of the four grades. Jake Salsavsky of Columbus, department adjutant, will be in charge of the state contest.

Trip Prizes Offered
The 12 state winners will receive an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D. C., and adjacent places of interest. Post winners probably will receive citations and county winners will each receive a medal. Nature of the district

Marion Members To Help Mark 35th Anniversary of Founding of Rotary

Talks in Schools and Special Program for Club Planned.

PAUL P. HARRIS
Founder of Rotary

Marion's Rotarians will join their fellow members throughout the world beginning Sunday in observance of the 35th anniversary of the founding of the international service organization. The observance scheduled for the week of Feb. 18-24, commemorates the first Rotary meeting in Chicago on Feb. 23, 1905.

Wilson B. Tway of King avenue is chairman of the Marion anniversary committee which includes Fred E. Guthery, Marion's first Rotary president, James E. Frew, Don A. Howard and Edgar Barnhart, past presidents.

The observance here will include talks in various schools, a sermon at the First Presbyterian church and a special anniversary program at a Rotary meeting.

Speaks at School Assembly
The first in the series of school talks was given this morning at Harding High school at the 8:15 assembly, by Mr. Guthery and Earl N. Hale. Mr. Guthery will speak again at 3 p. m. on Feb. 23 at Central Junior High school.

Mr. Howard will speak Feb. 21 at Vernon Heights Junior High school at 10:45 a. m. and on Feb. 23 at 8:15 a. m. at Thomas A. Edison Junior High school.

Rev. Howard L. Oleviller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will give a special sermon on Rotary Sunday morning at 10:45 at the church.

The program for Rotarians themselves will be held at a meeting soon, but not during the anniversary week because of conflict with the annual ladies' party.

The speakers in the schools will call attention to the anniversary and then outline the objectives and various activities of Rotary clubs. One of the main points will be vocational service, in which Rotarians seek to improve the standards and conditions in their own professions.

Chicagoan Was Founder
The founder of Rotary was Paul P. Harris, a Chicago attorney, who still is a leader in the movement. He and other Chicagoans joined together in the idea that men in business should have some way of becoming personal friends. The organization "caught on" and began to expand to other cities. The 100th club was formed in Phoenix, Ariz., in 1914. The movement became international in scope in 1910. Club No. 1,000, York, England, was admitted in 1921.

Today there are approximately 4,700 clubs with about 200,000 members in more than 80 countries and territories.

Marion's club was formed in 1922 on Feb. 1 and its charter number is 1,051. There were 21 charter members.

ESCAPE INJURY
UPPER SANDUSKY, Feb. 16—Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Zachary of here escaped uninjured Wednesday afternoon when skidded and overturned on a slippery road.

They were driving south on a two-lane road when the car skidded and turned over on its side.

The car was a 1935 Ford sedan. The driver, Paul E. Zachary, 35, of Upper Sandusky, N. Y., was not injured. His wife, Mrs. Zachary, 32, was not injured.

Ears Bright Red As Newsmen Pan Ohio Politicians

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 16—Red ears were fashionable among Ohio's political figures today after the "roasting" they received in the annual grilling show of the Columbus Press club.

Newspaper men who "cover" the state capital donned the disguise of various officials in performing their skills and songs.

Gov. John W. Bricker was depicted singing songs of "economy" and suggesting that he would make a "handsome candidate" for president than Sen. Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati.

Republican State Chairman Ed Schorr disagreed with Bricker's economy ideas to advocate awarding "a thousand and one jobs" each day.

Arthur L. Limbach, Democratic state chairman, was awarded the press club's trophy for the biggest "boner" of the year for his announcement, which party leaders called premature, of plans for Ohio's Democratic delegation to the national convention to support President Roosevelt for a third term.

Taft was ribbed for wearing a business suit on hunting trips. The newsmen discovered one man—Adolf Hitler—who had not been offered the presidency of Ohio State university.

John L. Morrison, editor of the Greenville (Pa.) Record-Argus was the off-the-record speaker.
